

MASTER OF EDUCATION IN HIGHER EDUCATION LEADERSHIP

Graduates of this program will have the tools to incorporate the most effective higher education theories and research into their practice. Specifically, students will be able to advance their careers in entry to mid-level higher education administrative positions. Additionally, students will be equipped with the skills and knowledge to pursue an advanced degree in higher education or related fields.

SOCIAL JUSTICE EDUCATION

Social Justice Education is an interdisciplinary body of scholarship that identifies issues related to educational equity. Students will acquire a fundamental understanding of the intersection between social identity and participation in social institutions, particularly higher education. Thus, the program explores the history and current status of social inequities as a means to equip students with information necessary to inform higher education policies and practices.

PROGRAM FEATURES

- Students gain information in both Academic Affairs and Student Affairs
- Integration of theory and practice through a Capstone Internship
- Cohort model links you to a professional network of higher education practitioners
- Required 32 credits
- Night classes conveniently offered on the main campus of Oakland University

PROGRAM MISSION

To develop transformational leaders who meet professional standards, understand social justice practices and think critically about promoting post-secondary institutions that are optimal sites for teaching and learning.

ON-CAMPUS PROGRAM

- program completed in two years
- courses are mostly in-person, some hybrid
- classes begin in fall of year one and end in winter of year two

ON-LINE PROGRAM

- program completed in 16 months
- courses are completely on-line for maximum flexibility
- classes begin in May and will conclude in August of the following year
- in-state tuition is granted for all students (both in-state and out-of-state)

OAKLAND.EDU/ORGLEADERSHIP